4	Marcelio Castillo	3 sites occupied simultaneously: a) Guacharaca		1
		b) Agua Linda	1
		c) Médano Alto		1					At the time of the observations (29), the site 29. /See footnote 29 above./ had only one type II 1 a habitation, temporarily occupied by one ♂, 1 ♀, and 2 children who were to return to Guacharaca.
5	Ramón Belmín	Médano Alto		5		5
6	Pedro Ramón Camacho (33)	a) Guamacho abandoned for:		3 to 4				x
		33. The underlined names are those of higher chiefs (in Spanish: capitán mayor) with greater authority than the other chiefs (in Spanish: capitán menor). This authority generally extends to the neighboring communities sometimes directed by a capitán menor and grouped together on this table by wavy lines.
	His actual authority over Ramón Belmín is contested.	b) (island opposite it)		3 to 4				x	The island was later abandoned for a site farther upstream.

3 This one has six type II 1a habitations laid out, at the end of our observations, along the bank as plan No. 1 shows.[1] At the beginning of our observations the habitation of the chief -- and at the time shaman -- of the community was located to the side and approximately 100 meters to the east of the other habitations.

5 Community No. 5 formerly formed one and the same community, No. 7. It was created at the beginning of our observations by Ramón Beltran, who no longer wanted to accept the authority of Pedro Ramón Camacho, capitán mayor.

6a and b In each of its successive sites -- (a): a sand dune on the right bank of the Capanaparo about 30 meters from the water and (b): a sandy shore on the island facing it -- the community has no permanent shape except for three type II 1a habitations (plans No. 2 and 3). The fourth, shown on plan No. 2, was built by the inhabitants of community No. 8 for a temporary stay. Habitation No. I, for the chief and shaman of the community, is larger than the others.

8 This community has two large type I habitations, the base and roofing of which, however, are rectangular at one end and rounded at the other.

9 The three large type I habitations of this community are more comfortable in appearance than the normal, but their deficient height does not allow a man to stand up in it.

11 The chief of the community lives in Vuelta Mala 2.
